WHY CHILDREN MUST GO FOR ADVENTURES

The crushing pressures young people deal with today are unlike anything previous generations have experienced. As result, we see an alarming rise in students who:

- Struggle with confidence and self-worth
- Crumble under the slightest emotional stressors
- Are unaccustomed to hardships
- Are unfamiliar with the joys of working collaboratively towards a common goal
- Are connected to their devices 24 x 7 but disconnected from themselves, their community, and the environment

More than ever, the mental, emotional, and spiritual well-being of students needs special attention. Classroom settings cannot always address these needs. The outdoors can and mindful trekking, especially so.

Research says the outdoors isn't just good for children's health, it improves their ability to learn.
